Recognitions/Are you an expert?

Rich Bowler must be an expert . . . he was an expert witness in court speaking to some matter between the City of Las Vegas and the police union. He wouldn't give much detail except he was subpoenaed. Mr. President did not feel that being an expert witness was enough to determine if Mr. Bowler knew his profession so he asked him a few questions of which he only scored 1 ½ points out of a possible 3. For his mistake he was recognized $150.

Rich Bowler – 1 ½ points

1. When was the first CPA exam given in the United States
 - a. 0 points – 1896 was the correct answer
2. Do you know what John Grisham's majored in and ultimately earned his bachelor's degree from Mississippi State?
 - a. 1 point - Accounting
3. Who was the first accountant
 - a. 1/2 point – Luca Pacioli - Selected from multiple choice

Who is a great-grandpa? Mr. President was very appreciative of Tom Martin's postcard from his recent European vacation but was more interested in Tom Martin's new family addition. Tom's grandson John Grey welcomed 6 pound 10 ounce Nash Edward Danger Grey into the world. It wasn't the birth of his grandson that cost Tom, it was not knowing what company made the world's largest tire. Lack of knowledge cost him $100.

Is Dollar Loan Center getting off easy this year? Ed Guthrie was asked about Opportunity Village’s relationship with Dollar Loan Center where Ed indicated that every day the temperature reaches or exceed 100 degrees Opportunity Village receives $1000 from the company. But it was the marriage of his daughter three weeks ago that cost him $100.

Don’t forget your guests, Mr. President! Mr. President recognized himself $25 for making one too many mistakes in his second meeting by not announcing Rich Bowler’s guest and Club member prospect Caleb Adcock.

Turn of your #*%$ cell phone! Hank Falstad was recognized $100 for not silencing his cell phone not once, but twice during our guest speaker’s presentation.

Someone needs to proofread the new president's PowerPoint

Mr. President sets his Club Assembly trap

Why does Melissa Copeland look so happy?
I wonder . . .

"I testified because I had to, not because I wanted to!" exclaims Rich Bowler

"Took long enough . . ." mumbles the Club's newest member Sean Henn

"My new grandson's middle name is 'Danger,'" laments granddad Tom Martin

Sean Henn takes his place among the Club's members

Mitchell Horst's new bride smiles as she doesn't "have to" sit next to him

"Ha! Ha!" thinks Ted Henderson. "The new guy didn't realize I wasn't supposed to be given the microphone!"

"Cell phones suck!" exhales guest speaker Dr. Sam Schwartz
