Recognitions

That house in Boulder City is no joke . . . Mr. President made mention of outrageous homes found out near Scott Baranoff's Boulder City home. In particular 604 Lido Dr. has 20 bedrooms, 25 bathrooms and has a 22,000 square foot house/"water theme park". Many in the Club are familiar with Scott's home as he hosts the Club's annual golf outing post-celebration, of which once Chris Publow found himself unexpectedly in the pool. That, and Scott's joke, cost him $75.

It's that time of year again . . . Dayton Blaine was asked about the going's-on of Texas A&M which found itself in the news over the weekend as the SEC made overtures. Dayton said he grew up there. That response landed him with a $150 recognition.

The travels of your family cost you as well . . . Pepe Charles indicated that the only news he had was that his wife and daughter went to Germany. The trip became that much more expensive with a $100 recognition.

It must be pretty boring being retired . . . As Cliff Dieterle would explain it. His life is traveling, golfing, Rotary and church (possibly not in that order). For his lack of “dirt”, Cliff was recognized $125.

Our Program:

Brian Burton, the new president and CEO of Three Square, gave a general overview of Las Vegas' most successful food bank explaining they have 2 warehouses, provide children backpacks and provide more than 2000 meals a day to children during the summer. He encouraged those with means to continue to provide what they can as the need for food services in Southern Nevada are increasing everyday. He also informed the group that this year's annual Restaurant Week begins August 29 and has many great deals at area restaurants benefiting the needy throughout the community. For more information on both Three Square, contributing and Restaurant Week please visit www.threesquare.org.
